

CyberArk End-of-Life Policy

Terminology and Terms

Product

Refers to an individual offering, a subset of a suite.

Version

Refers to a specific edition of a product as indicated by its number, normally in the following format: release number.version, (e.g. EPV 7.1)

End-of-Expansion-Sale Date

The final date on which a product version can be expanded within the same product version of an existing installation after the availability of a new product version and no later than 1 year before the end-of-support date.

End of Development Date

The final date on which CyberArk will cease to provide code fixes and changes¹. Normally, fixes may be delivered on previous version up to 2 years from the version release date.

End-of-Support Date

The final date on which CyberArk will cease to provide support for a product version, including technical support, on-site support, helpdesk support and training. Unless otherwise specified by CyberArk, a product version end-of-support date will be 3 years from version release.

¹ Support cases that were opened prior to this date will not be affected

Sunset Timelines as of February 2018²
